

SIBIMS – Bladder infections and the brain.

This study is aiming to look at the effects of bladder infections on the brain on those without any neurological (brain) disorder and those with multiple sclerosis.

If you are 18 years and over and experience a urinary tract infection or are known to suffer from recurrent infections may be invited to participate in this study. If you are eligible you will be invited to attend the Wessex Neurological Centre at Southampton General, where you will be asked to participate in various investigations including; completing a questionnaire, simple examination; blood test, MRI scan of your brain.